• ÉDIPAX •

Édipax, the English division of French-Canadian publishing company Éditions de la Paix, is now proudly directing its attention to the English North American, Australian, South African and British markets. In nineteen years of existence, Éditions de la Paix has published more than 200 titles. The philosophy of this publishing house is expressed in its famous slogan: "For the beauty of words and the celebration of diversity..." Our objective is to be educational, fun and socially responsible.

Through the years, Éditions de la Paix has published a variety of books and collections; novels and short stories, poetry, children's books, essays, esoteric and spiritual books, always with an eye for quality. Our grand desire is to introduce the youngest of children to the pleasures of reading, and, subtly, to the virtue of learning.

No doubt, the titles from Éditions de la Paix are of high quality. Several of them have received prestigious awards and prizes. Now, Édipax, with its new director, Kerry Summers, wants to penetrate the English market as it has the market in the province of Quebec and other countries. To tempt your appetite, here are a few outlines of what is coming.
